PROFESSIONAL NEW GRADUATE MENTORING

Have a professional mentor guide your new graduate employee through the first year of their career so you can relax and concentrate on supporting their clinical skills. Help your new graduate employee smoothly transition into work by providing them with a safe, private and supportive platform to share their successes and concerns.

By creating long term supportive relationships and providing evidence based information on what troubles people during times of transition, this program promotes resilience and personal growth for improved productivity, longevity, health and happiness. It increases commitment, job satisfaction and engagement.

Employers are invited to a free Q&A with Cathy Warburton before the program starts to make sure we look after your staff the way you want. Two employers sessions are also available for bosses of participants who want professional coaching support for their experiences with New Graduates.
